Wishlist User Personas & Interview Transcripts

Ankur, 28 (Patna) – The Patient Bargain Hunter

Frequency of shopping: Every 2–3 months / Uses wishlist as a price-tracking tool

Think about the last fashion product you added to a wishlist. What was it, and why didn't you buy it right then?

"I added a pair of branded sneakers. I didn't buy them right then because I felt the current price was too high and I wanted to wait for an upcoming sale or a random price drop."

Walk me through how you generally use the wishlist feature. What are you usually trying to achieve?

"My wishlist is basically a 'wait for discount' folder. If I like clothing or footwear but don't need it urgently, I save it so I don't lose track of it while I wait for the price to go down."

What usually stops you from purchasing the items you save?

"Price. I am strictly waiting for a discount. If the discount never comes, or if the price is still too high after a minor drop, I just leave it there."

Tell me about a time you actually ended up buying something from your wishlist. What pushed you to make the purchase?

"I bought a jacket a few weeks ago because I got a notification that the price dropped significantly. A bigger discount is the only thing that makes me buy."

If a fashion shopping app could do ONE thing to help you purchase wishlist products, what would you want it to do?

"Give me personalized notifications when the price drops, or offer me a custom, time-limited discount on exactly what I've saved."

Kritika, 24 (Bangalore) – The Cautious Comparer

Frequency of shopping: About once a month / Uses wishlist to shortlist multiple options

Think about the last fashion product you added to a wishlist. What was it, and why didn't you buy it right then?

"I added a few different formal shirts. I didn't buy any immediately because I wanted to compare them against similar options on other apps like Amazon or Myntra before making a final decision."

Walk me through how you generally use the wishlist feature. What are you usually trying to achieve?

"I use the wishlist to shortlist items. I add products I'm comparing. It helps me keep track of the top contenders while I look for better deals or better designs elsewhere."

What usually stops you from purchasing the items you save?

"I usually end up finding a better product elsewhere, or a similar product at a better price on another platform."

Tell me about a time you actually ended up buying something from your wishlist. What pushed you to make the purchase?

"I finally bought some jeans from my wishlist after comparing three different brands and deciding the one I saved had the best overall value and look."

If a fashion shopping app could do ONE thing to help you purchase wishlist products, what would you want it to do?

"Make it easier to compare against multiple options side-by-side, or show me a price history so I know I'm getting a fair deal compared to other sites."

Rohit, 29 (Delhi) – The Fit & Fabric Skeptic

Frequency of shopping: A few times a year / Needs substantial social proof

Think about the last fashion product you added to a wishlist. What was it, and why didn't you buy it right then?

"I added a dress, but I didn't check out because the product photos weren't super clear and I was really unsure about the fabric quality and how the sizing ran."

Walk me through how you generally use the wishlist feature. What are you usually trying to achieve?

"I add things I genuinely want to buy, but I use the wishlist as a holding area while I try to find more information or customer photos to validate the quality before I commit."

What usually stops you from purchasing the items you save?

"Quality concerns and being unsure about the size or fit. If I can't figure out if it will actually look good on me, I won't risk the hassle of returning it."

Tell me about a time you actually ended up buying something from your wishlist. What pushed you to make the purchase?

"I purchased a sweater from my wishlist after I finally saw some customer review photos that showed the true color and fit. Better size information gave me the confidence."

If a fashion shopping app could do ONE thing to help you purchase wishlist products, what would you want it to do?

"Build a feature that gives me more confidence on fabric and size—maybe by highlighting detailed customer reviews, original unedited product images, or exact sizing measurements."

Aryan, 23 (Gurgaon) – The Aspirational Scroller

Frequency of shopping: Every 2–3 months / Uses wishlist for high-budget inspiration

Think about the last fashion product you added to a wishlist. What was it, and why didn't you buy it right then?

"I added a really expensive designer handbag. I didn't buy it because it's totally out of my budget right now, but I loved how it looked."

Walk me through how you generally use the wishlist feature. What are you usually trying to achieve?

"I use my wishlist mostly for inspiration. I save a lot of clothing and accessories that I find beautiful while scrolling, even if I don't plan to buy them immediately."

What usually stops you from purchasing the items you save?

"Usually I just forget about it, or the price remains too high. Honestly, I add things knowing I might never buy them. Sometimes they just go out of stock before I even look at them again."

Tell me about a time you actually ended up buying something from your wishlist. What pushed you to make the purchase?

"I bought a saved dress because I had a specific event coming up, and I remembered I had saved something perfect for it months ago."

If a fashion shopping app could do ONE thing to help you purchase wishlist products, what would you want it to do?

"Suggest the latest fashion trends based on my wishlist, or give me a big surprise discount coupon for a specific period of time—like 2-3 hours—to trigger an impulse buy."

Krishna, 27 (Hyderabad) – The Strategic Planner

Frequency of shopping: Multiple times a month / Uses wishlist as a "Buy Later" cart

Think about the last fashion product you added to a wishlist. What was it, and why didn't you buy it right then?

"I added a pair of running shoes. I didn't buy them immediately because my current pair still has a few weeks of life left, so it was a 'buy later' situation."

Walk me through how you generally use the wishlist feature. What are you usually trying to achieve?

"I treat my wishlist like a staging area for my actual wardrobe needs. I track things I will definitely need soon and wait for the optimal time to buy."

What usually stops you from purchasing the items you save?

"Usually just waiting for the right time, or occasionally I'll wait too long and the item goes out of stock in my preferred size while I'm holding it."

Tell me about a time you actually ended up buying something from your wishlist. What pushed you to make the purchase?

"I bought a wishlisted item immediately when I got a 'low stock' alert. My preferred size was about to sell out, so I had to pull the trigger."

If a fashion shopping app could do ONE thing to help you purchase wishlist products, what would you want it to do?

"Track my wishlist and tell me the best time to buy based on price drops, upcoming sales, stock levels, and size availability. Just don't spam me with irrelevant notifications."
